The resource person began with a broad review of hepatic architecture and progressed to hepatocellular cancer and the potential targeted treatments. The presentation was really beneficial for our students and the entire audience. The resource person then went into depth on the causes and precautions that may be taken to live a healthy lifestyle. Following the discussion, a interaction session was organized in which participants were requested to ask any questions they had. Both students and faculty members put forwarded their questions, which were expertly answered by our resource person. Despite bad internet network, the lecture series could record a total of 75 participants, including both students and faculty members. The session was concluded with a vote of thanks by Dr. Manalisha Deka.
